ATTN: William Neukom

On December 2, 1998, I faxed you a letter. It refers to the micro-processing of privacy invasion. This involves a tort system. It is a wrongful act, not including a breach of contract or trust, that results in injury to another person, property, reputation, or the like, and for which the injured party is entitled to compensation. The dishonest computer hackers need to be prosecuted. Privacy invasion is a violation of the U.S. constitution. I believe it's in Microsoft's best interest to compensate for damages suffered. Microsoft can participate in acknowledging the relentless pursuit of injury to our central nervous systems. I will be informing the Inspector General at the U.S. Justice Department.

I have been online for nearly 1900 consecutive days, around the clock. Environmental Defense Fund in Washington D.C. has offered to support me.

My case is about how word processors are converting electrical pulses into sound that is compressed and decompressed into digital code. It refers to software that has not been processed into voice recognition. Microsoft has not acknowledged this either. These interfaces have me a centralized PC within a Public Switched Telephone Network. I need these signals or pulses converted into modulation transmitted above the threshold. This will help me regain my privacy. Considering all the devastation, I will settle for a 1 billion dollar settlement. I will consider any, out court, counter offer. Please, have someone contact me by mail, phone call or fax at your earliest convenience.

YOURS IN CHRIST
